Jury Finds Bogaert Guilty of Attempted Murder

A Crawford County jury found John Bogaert, 50, of Grayling, guilty of assault with attempt to murder in a 48th Circuit Court trial. He was also found guilty of possession of a firearm. Bogaert was charged with attempting to shoot Michelle Haskin, 28, of Grayling, in the lobby of the Chief Shoppenagons Hotel. Haskin was able to place her left hand between the hammer and firing pin of a .44 caliber revolver held by Bogaert, causing the gun to misfire.

County Prosecutor John Huss said the firearm charge carries a mandatory 2 year prison term and the attempted murder charge carries a maximum sentence of life imprisonment. Sentencing will be held at a later date. The jury trial ended Monday, May 22, and was conducted by Judge William Porter.

Nine Injured Riding In Back of Pickup

Troy Cleveland, 18, of Portage, was arrested for operating a vehicle while under the influence of liquor (O.U.I.L.), following a single car accident that sent nine of his passengers to the hospital.

Cleveland was driving eastbound on Beaver Road in Camp Grayling, last Thursday, May 18, when he lost control on a curve, striking the guard rail and then slamming into a closed gate. All nine passengers were thrown from the back of Cleveland's pickup when it hit the gate.

The accident victims, from nine different cities in Michigan, were transported to Mercy Hospital by four ambulances from Crawford County, Frederic Township and Northern E.M.S.

Besides the O.U.I.L. charge, the Crawford County Sheriff Dept. cited Cleveland for not using his seatbelt.

Legion Post 106 Leads Memorial Day Services

Memorial Day services will be conducted by Grayling American Legion Post 106 on Monday, May 29, from 9:30 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. at the Grayling Elmwood Cemetery. If any other group, organization, or person wishes to have a part in the program, please contact Post #106 at 348-7232.

The Grayling High School Band will open the program at 9:30 with a few selections. John Keir, Post 106 Commander, will welcome those in attendance at 10:00 a.m. Post Chaplain Leo Hirvela will give the invocation followed by a short address.

A color guard and firing squad representing the Michigan National Guard and the American Legion under the direction of CSM Harold Goinick will add to the program.

Grayling Fish Hatchery Opens Seventh Season

Despite the rainy weather, the Grayling Fish Hatchery opened for its seventh season on Saturday, May 20th.

Manager, Howard Hatfield, laughed and said, "Wouldn't you know it! It's been a dry spring until the day we open," he said, "and then the skies open up."

The damp weather held attendance to 629 visitors.

The Grayling Fish Hatchery is open seven days a week from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. and will have 32,000 fish in its raceways this summer. Admission is free.

Leave Wild Animals Alone, DNR Cautions

DNR Conservation officers are urging Crawford County visitors and residents to leave young wild animals alone. Usually during Memorial weekend, well-meaning people will pick up a fawn who looks lost. DNR officers say that often the fawn's mother is nearby waiting for the people to leave. Even if an animal's mother appears to be gone or dead, DNR officers urge people to call the local DNR field office instead of picking up the animal.

Camp Grayling Environmental Report Challenged

"Either Camp Grayling is the cleanest operation in the state," said Dr. William Cooper, MSU zoologist and environmentalist, "or the DNR is just not looking very good."

Cooper stated that to his knowledge, Camp Grayling is the only military installation in Michigan that has not been cited for environmental violations by the Environmental Protection Agency.

"I see Camp Grayling going from a place where the Michigan National Guard trains to a national or regular Army fort," said Dr. Robert Unsworth. "The time has come where I think they have to go someplace else, or go back to what the camp was originally developed for."

"I think this EIS should be checked to see if the cancer causing hydrocarbons and the cancer causing nitrosamines (that are by-products of exploding shells) are identified as to where they are, what happens to them and what the probability is of their movement into your water supply," said Dr. Nat Rowe, pathologist.

These concerns, and many other criticisms were lobbed at the draft Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) developed for Camp Grayling's proposed expansion. More than 150 persons attended the public hearing on the EIS last Wednesday, May 17, at the GHS Joseph Stripe Auditorium. About 40 persons filled out cards requesting to speak during the hearing. The public hearing took about three hours, and during that time only one voice spoke in favor of the expansion project, and only the experts hired by the AuSable Manistee Action Council (AMAC) and Trout Unlimited admitted to understanding the lengthy document.

Dr. Glenn Goff, Vital Resource

Consulting, retained by AMAC, said his consulting firm has put together a team of experts to review the EIS consisting of Don Richards, administrative manager of the project; George Hamperman, engineer and an expert on acoustics and noise; Dr. Dan Talhelm, Resource Econometrics; and Dr. Wm. Cooper.

Goff said the EIS assumes that the 50,000 acres on which the proposed expansion would occur are under the complete control of the Department of Military Affairs (DMA). He said for a large portion of the land to be used for the proposed expansion this assumption is not valid.

"Careful reading of the lease agreement between the DNR and the DMA reveals that only limited rights were transferred to the DMA," said Goff.

According to Goff the terms of the lease state: "...authority to use said lands for military purposes in the same manner and to the same extent as is now exercised on and over the Hanson State Military Reservation."

Goff stated that the first lease was drafted in 1948 and renewed in 1978 to the then current technology and levels of use. He said that neither the Camp Grayling master plan nor the EIS makes mention of this restriction.

Dr. Dan Talhelm said by making use of public land undesirable, because of noise, traffic or other interferences, the National Guard is in effect restricting the use of public lands beyond its restricted use permit.

"These impacts could be so great, that recreational values would be reduced to near zero," Talhelm said.

DNR INVOLVED

"The DNR is going to be responsible for making sure if Camp Grayling is expanded, both in terms of size and in terms of winter operations, you get a Cadillac and not a Volkswagen," stated Dr. Cooper. "The Kirtland Warbler, the AuSable River and the Hartwick Pines State Park all require that if you do it, you do it first class."

"If you want to enforce environmental standards," stated Dr. Cooper, "make sure that whatever is agreed to is incorporated into DNR permits. If it is not imbedded in a permit, nobody is going to monitor the effects. If they are verbal statements," he warned, "forget it."

Dr. Rowe, a pathologist and a decorated civilian consultant with the Army, said that as a pathologist it is his job to find out what causes cancer. He said he had one question and one comment.

"If it requires nitrogen in the compound to explode shells, what happens to the nitrogen at the time of the explosion and thereafter?" he asked.

NITROSAMINES

Dr. Rowe said that these compounds combine to make nitrosamines which cause cancer in incredibly tiny particles. He said that the Environmental Protection Agency limits the amount of nitrosamines in baby bottle nipples to 10 parts per billion.

KIRKUM WINS STATE HONOR — Angela Kirkum of Grayling receives a commemorative clock/weather station and a certificate for a trip to Hawaii from Ernie Harwell as winner of the Concerned Citizen of the Year Award from Citizens Insurance Company.

GHS Band Participates In State Jazz Festival

The Grayling High School Jazz Ensemble performed in the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association's annual Regional Jazz Festival for the first time since its inception three years ago.

The Jazz Festival, which was held on April 22 at Roscommon High School, is structured differently from the regular band and orchestra festivals. Normally, bands are classified by school size and then compete in a district festival. If they receive the highest ranking (I), they proceed to state-level competition.

The jazz festivals, however, are unclassified, with AA schools performing along with Class D ensembles. Four judges rate each group, with only the three performance judges' evaluations used for rating purposes. The sight reading judge works with the band in a mini-clinic. As well as performing their prepared selections, jazz ensembles are required to improvise or compose music on the spot.

GHS earned a II ranking in an evaluation system which goes from I (superior) to V (unsatisfactory). Director Dennie Ormsbee said he regards the II as "very respectable for the first showing at a jazz festival."

The GHS Jazz Ensemble performed for the public at the annual Springtime in the Arts Program in the Joseph Stripe Auditorium on Wednesday, May 10.

Kirkum's Volunteer Work Earns Trip to Hawaii

Angela Kirkum of Grayling travelled to Lansing this week. So did Kate Bennett of Hastings. This morning, both women learned that their trips to the state capital are just the first part of a journey that will take them to Hawaii for a one-week, vacation-for-two.

In a special awards ceremony held today at the Radisson Hotel in conjunction with Senior Power Day, Kirkum and Bennett were named statewide winners (for 1988) in the Concerned Citizens Awards program sponsored by Citizens Insurance Company. In naming Kirkum "Concerned Citizen of the Year" and Bennett "Concerned Neighbor of the Year," Citizens presented each of the women with a commemorative award and a certificate for a vacation in Hawaii.

The awards program is designed to recognize senior citizens in

Small Fires Strike, County Woods Still Dry

The DNR, Beaver Creek, and Grayling City and Township fire departments extinguished two small fires on Wakeley Bridge Road and Dort Road on Sunday, May 21.

Duane Brooks, DNR fire officer, said that the Wakeley Bridge fire was started by an electrical shortage caused by a power pole failure. The fire was contained to 1/10 of an acre. The Dort Road fire burned about 1 1/2 acres, and Brooks speculated the fire was started by children playing with matches.

Brooks said even though the county has experienced some rainfall, total rainfall is still about three inches below normal, and the forests are still very dry.

"Last Sunday's warm winds really dried things up," he said. "Conditions are still not safe."

Last Friday, May 19, the DNR and Beaver Creek fire departments put out a fire in Beaver Creek Township that burned 2/10 of an acre and endangered several buildings. Brooks said the fire was started by a resident burning weeds and worms fell to the ground, igniting the fire. Brooks cautioned residents against this method of pest control.

Burning permits are being issued by the DNR on a day-to-day basis.

"I suspect that this stuff is going to be on the ground when it (nitrosamines) is made," he said, "and you won't find it in your water. But," Rowe said, "after a time, when you turn on the faucet, and you think you are getting fresh, clean water, you will be causing cancer in your gut and in your liver."

Rowe said that when that happens, it will be too late, either for the residents of Crawford County or their water supply.

Rowe concluded by saying we have all witnessed the dumping of oil in Alaska. He said in his opinion it was not the fault of the captain of the vessel, but rather the greed that motivated responsible persons to ignore the possibility of tragedy.

"Let's stop tragedy in Grayling," he said.

Edward Van Guten, a township attorney for 10 years, stated the EIS says there are no local and state regulation governing military activities.

"Township officials and the Board of County Commissioners have the authority to pass those types of regulations," he said, "and if they are not there, it is your fault."

"The day the National Guard stops its shooting and the bombing in Crawford County," Guten said, "Crawford County will begin a new and enlarged economic life. I urge you to do so."

"I saw the sixties, and what the kids did," said Dr. Unsworth, "and it ground the hell out of me. I was in the Navy at the time," he said. "Now, I find myself feeling like I'm on their side because I see what is happening."

"I love the term government money," Unsworth said. "The government hasn't got any money! The government confiscates our tax dollars and they spend it. We pay the freight," he said, "and nobody listens to us."

SEWAGE

Don Welser, a Crawford County resident, said the EIS proposes to build five 100 person barracks and two 200 person B.O.Q.s on the airport for 900 aviation persons at a cost of $4 1/2 million.

"EIS talks about the sewage for the main containment area, but they don't talk about any sewage facility out at the airport," said Welser. "Nine hundred people create quite a sewage problem," he said, "and the city of Grayling cannot handle 900 people on their facility, and that is what the airport is on now."

SUPPORTS EXPANSION

Henry Mason, of Livingston Township in Otsego County, and the only person to support the expansion, said that he gets a sense of security knowing there are people in the state who are willing to train in the use of the weapons of war. He called the EIS a trap because it offers people an opportunity to put personal desires above maintaining a good defense system.

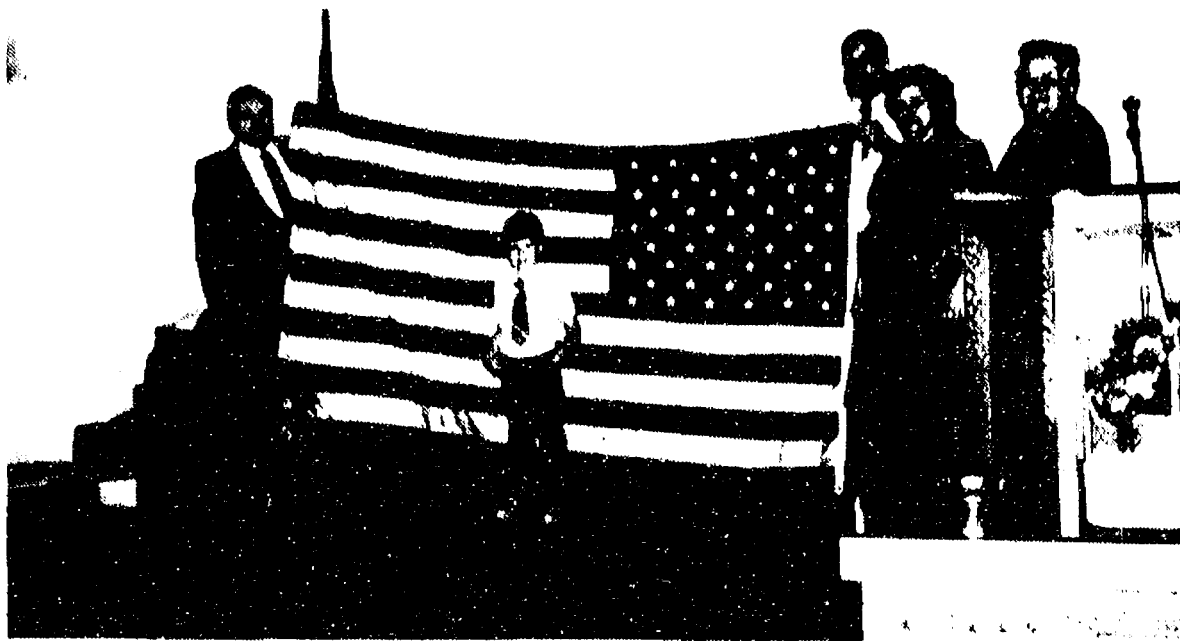

Tom Baird, attorney in Ingham County, representing Trout Unlimited, said the EIS contains gross oversights such as: the social consequences in terms of crime and trespass, the fact that only Grayling was discussed in the economic impact section, and completely disregards Camp Grayling's impact on Kalkaska and Otsego counties, and the omission of any discussion on the adverse economic impacts of Camp Grayling on the affected areas. Baird said the EIS completely ignores the different health hazards that have been discussed.

In short, Baird said the EIS was "thin in all respects except inches."

Rusty Gates, a Crawford County resident and president of the Anglers of the AuSable, said his organization of more than 700 members supports AMAC and Trout Unlimited's opposition to any expansion of the Camp Grayling facility.

With the exception of the AMAC experts from Vital Resources Consulting, all the speakers who voiced concerns regarding the accuracy and thoroughness of the draft EIS, and in opposition to Camp Grayling's proposed expansion, were property owners living full or part-time in the areas affected by the Camp Grayling proposed expansion.

The draft EIS was developed by E.A. Hickok and Associates, a division of James M. Montgomery, Consulting Engineers, Inc. Judd Ebersviller, a representative of Hickok, conducted the hearing.

Michigan who have contributed outstanding service to their community or neighborhood. Kirkum and Bennett were selected from among hundreds of nominees statewide. Earlier this year, they were named regional award winners in the Northern Lower Michigan and Western Michigan regions, respectively.

The awards were presented by Ernie Harwell, radio announcer for the Detroit Tigers and advertising spokesperson for Citizens, and Patrick Coffey, assistant vice president of marketing at Citizens Insurance Company, headquartered in Howell, Michigan.

"Angela Kirkum and Kate Bennett have devoted literally hundreds of hours of service to their communities," said Coffey. "These awards and the entire program allow us to recognize the many contributions being made throughout the state by a substantial number of energetic and civic-minded senior citizens."

Kirkum, 89, performs volunteer work at an elementary school, her church, an extended care facility, a hospital and the local senior center. She is a member of RSVP and AARP, organizations for retired persons.

She is an active member of the Ladies Auxillary at Grayling Mercy Hospital, where she works as a volunteer two days a week. Kirkum helps with patient care at the Grayling Extended Care Facility. As a member of the St. Mary's Catholic Women's Club, she has helped with many of the church's special events and fund-raising projects. In 1988, Kirkum organized a formal car wash as a fund-raising event for the Grayling Lioness Club. Dressed in formal gowns, Lioness club members washed cars to raise money for local and state civic programs.

"Angela is a real inspiration to all who know her," said Mary Prause of Grayling, who nominated Kirkum for the Concerned Citizens Award.

I wonder what our children will remember about growing up in Grayling years from now?

Reading Joe Murphy's memories of Frederic and Grayling made me realize how many things have changed for children here, especially in the last 25 years.

There are no more Henig's field or Madsen's field baseball games, no basketball games at Penrod's court, no toboggan rides at Bear Mountain, no ropes to swing over the river at Penrod's, Kelly's, or the city park, no Moshier's coal barn to play in.

The Fred Bear Museum is gone as well as the Polyhedron. The South Side school has been torn down and the old high school gym (now the middle school gym) actually has solid doors that keep kids from sneaking in after hours to play basketball.

Dawson's is still here as a gathering place but Bob's Drive-In is gone and so is Dad Hanson's.

The fish hatchery has returned after being closed many years. Hartwick Pines has an asphalt path running through it to the logging camp but many other things are still the same out among the tall pines.

The AuSable River and Lake Margrethe are still here, although both are much more built up and busy. Several river places such as the old trestle, the old beach by the courthouse, and the place across from the old fish hatchery are private lands or not available to kids. The two sand hills are still at Lake Margrethe but several former swimming places -- which used to have a firm sandy bottom -- now have weeds and soft muck.

Everyone treasures their own memories, regards them as special. That's the way it should be.

A lot has changed since we were kids here and there aren't as many woods, places for children to play, or wild places to explore.

Our children need safe places to play, basic recreational facilities such as a ballfield, and some special places to explore. Passing the Hanson Hills millage was a good sign that we're trying to keep enough places left for our children.

I hope their memories of growing up in Grayling can be as special as the kids who went before them.

Letters to the Editor

Count Him Out Of The Annual Porcupine Shoot

The second annual porcupine shootin Crawford County in my opinion is a farce. Activities like this just give fuel to the anti-hunting movement in this country. Let's not forget "The Guns of Autumn" movie we all had rubbed in our face a few years ago.

Not one person I have shown the attached advertisement to has thought it was the type of recreation any genuine sportsman would even think of taking part in.

I also note that no mention of the second annual porcupine barbecue was made, so I assume that the trophies will be deposited in a dumpster some place close to the weigh-in station.

I'm not part of the anti-hunting movement. I've been a licensed Michigan hunter since childhood and also a member of an Archery Club. I've traveled to many archery clubs in southern Michigan, a few in Ohio and one in Indiana, to compete in their events; always bowhunting target shoots.

Just because it may be legal doesn't make it right to use a living creature as a target, to improve your marksmanship. I'm not sure, but if today's sportsman's ethics accept this behavior then count me out, I don't want to be seen in their company afield or anywhere else.

P.S. Don't invite me to the first annual Sparrow Shoot either if allowed it would also be "legal".

Let's Talk About It

By Joe Murphy

If any man ever deserved a place in the Farmers Hall of Fame (if there is such a place) it has to be the man who invented the old stationary hay baler. It made it feasible to ship hay by rail. Farmers in areas with a good hay crop could ship hay to markets like the lumber camps who had to depend on baled hay to feed their teams of horses and oxen. Great as this invention was, it was the by-product of baled hay alone that should assure him fame. The wire used to tie with bales known as baling or hay wire was the greatest thing to ever hit the American farm. With it you could repair just about anything on the farm including the old Model T Ford. It was a soft, easy to bend wire that was very strong and long lasting. It was used to repair and strengthen everything from fences to horse harness. Even today a lot of tools seen in museums and antique shops show hay wire repairs. So here's to the great friend of the old American farmer, Hay Wire.

It seems as you grow older you spend more time in memory lane recalling those happy days of childhood. I feel very fortunate to have so many great memories of those happy days. My Mom and Dad were wonderful parents who knew when you needed a pat on the back or a swat on the butt. The great folks that lived in Frederic in those days bring forth many wonderful memories. Oscar and Almira Smock were our next door neighbors and two finer folks I've yet to see. Oscar had a rough and gruff exterior with a heart of gold beneath it. Almira who we always called Mammie was a wonderful kind lady. They had several grand kids of their own but could always find time for others. I remember spending many evenings listening to Jimmy Rogers singing those great old songs like The Wreck Of Old 97 or Waiting For a Train on their old Victorrola. They have been gone for many years but both are still alive and smiling in my memories.

We sure are having a lousy spring. Today the 7th of May it is cold and I just saw some snow flakes in the air. It just don't seem to want to warm up. We have not had many nice days for this late in the spring. But in a month we will be praying for cooler weather.

I have not been getting much response from you old timers. Please give me a call so I can get your stories of the old days on record. I know you have many stories to tell that folks would like to hear. Give me a call 348-8308.

Do You Remember?

By Gene Leader, Dearborn
Hello! Remember me? Some call me Old Glory, others call me Stars and Stripes. I have also been referred to as the Star Spangled Banner. But whatever they call me, I am your Flag of the United States of America. There is something bothering me, so I thought that I might talk it over with you.

I remember some time ago - I think it was Memorial Day - people were lined up on both sides of the street to watch the parade. A High School band was leading the parade. When your Daddy saw me coming along waving in the breeze, he immediately removed his hat and placed it against his left shoulder so that his hand was directly over his heart. And you - I remember you. Standing there as straight as a soldier, you didn't have any hat, but you were giving the right salute. They taught you in school to place your hand over your heart. Remember little sister? Not to be undone, she was also saluting, same as you. I was very proud as I came down your street, and there were some soldiers home on leave, and they were standing at attention giving the Military Salute.

Now, I may sound as if I am a little conceited. Well, I am. I have a right to be. I represent the United States of America. What has happened? I'm still the same old Flag. Oh, I have a couple more stars added since you were a boy. A lot more Stars added since the beginning of this Country. A lot more blood has been shed since that Memorial Day so long ago.

But now I don't feel as proud as I used to feel. When I come down your street, some people just stand there with their hands in their pockets and give me a small glance and then look away. Then I see children running around and shouting. They don't seem to know who I am.

Is it a sin to be patriotic anymore? Have some people forgotten what I stand for? Have they forgotten all the Battlefields where men fought and died to keep this nation Free? When you salute, you are actually saluting them.

Take a look at the Memorial Honor Rolls some time. Look at the names of those who never came back. Some of them were friends or relatives of yours. That's whom you are saluting. NOT ME!

Well, it won't be long until I will be coming down your street again. So, when you see me, stand straight, place your hand over your heart, and you will really see me waving back - My salute to YOU, and then I will know that you REMEMBER.

Notes from the Woods

By Nancy Lemmon
Avalanche Columnist

Last week, the day after what would have been my grandmother's birthday -- if she had lived into her nineties -- we attended the funeral of another family member, who was also a grandparent.

Upon hearing of the man's death, one of his grandsons announced sadly: Grandpa B. died. But at least we have one grandpa left. And he's a nice one.

For awhile you have him. I wanted to tell the child, who is my nephew. With luck, you will have him for a few more years. And you have your grandmothers, too -- for a while.

But you will spend the majority of your life without them. So now is the time to begin storing up those memories that will keep your grandparents alive and with you until the days when you have grandchildren of your own.

I was very lucky. I knew all four of my grandparents. I had them throughout my childhood and into early adulthood. Having and knowing them was one of the greatest gifts I have ever been given.

Grandpa Stodola died first, when I was a junior in college. A first generation American. He moved from Bohemia to the United States as a child and always spoke with a distinctive accent. I thought he sounded kind of gruff, but he always treated me softly.

We visited Grandma and him on their farm once every summer when we were children. He almost always wore a light blue workshirt and dark blue overalls. I followed him to the barn and the fields when he did chores and he gave me rides in his wheelbarrow. He let me try to milk the cow, and I remember crying once when her tail swatted me in the eyes.

He built us grandchildren a swing that hung from the big maple tree in his front yard. Sometimes, at family gatherings, he would take out his accordion and play old songs for us.

He talked little, and after his stroke, I never heard him speak again. My father looks like him, and my Uncle Bob even more. I look like my dad, so there must be something of Grandpa in me, too.

Grandma Wagner died next, when I worked at Alma College. She was a lady in the finest sense. I used to watch her sit at her mirror as she combed her long, straight hair, then twisted it expertly around her fingers and pinned it up. When she went downstairs, I would explore her bureau, dabbling on her perfumes and trying on her rhinestone necklaces and earrings.

She had a fine, gentle sense of humor. Once, I spilled milk on the floor immediately after she had washed and waxed it. That's alright, honey, she said. My grandma told me that milk makes a floor shine. She loved lilacs and never wore slacks.

Every time she and Grandpa visited, she brought us a homemade angelfood cake with orange or lemon icing. At night she would sit on the couch and we would take turns lying across her lap. With her long, thin, lovely fingers, she would rub our backs and pat our arms.

When she stopped baking and forgot our names, she went into a nursing home. There they cut her hair short and took off her jewelry. I was glad for her when she died.

Grandpa Wagner lived a few more sad, lonely years without her. Life was no longer pleasurable for him.

But when we visited him as children, he always sought out the small pleasures for my brothers and me. He ordered special treats from the Sealtest milkman for us. He bought tuna fish for my favorite sandwiches.

When he visited us, he brought us Russell Stover candy wrapped in thick aluminum foil. He gave us dollars to supplement what we all thought were too meager allowances from our parents.

Grandma didn't drive, so he did all the shopping. When I visited, we went together to the meat market, the hardware store, the nursery.

He didn't want Grandma to go to the nursing home, but he couldn't take care of her alone. He visited her there every day, except once when he had the flu, and even after she hardly knew him anymore. Cancer finally allowed him to join her, a few weeks after he lost one arm to the disease.

Grandma Stodola died last. The columbine growing now in my flower bed came from seeds she gave me, so today her presence is strong in my mind. I can see her in a simple flowered housedress covered by an apron, her daily costume.

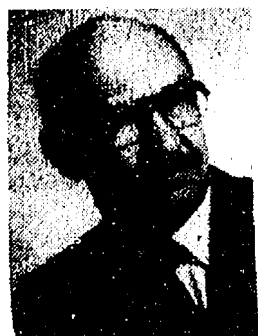

She would cook and bake on her wood stove when we visited. I would go with her to feed the chickens and gather the eggs, which I carefully placed on a shelf in her walk-in pantry. I still am transported back to the farm by the smell of the cracked corn I put out for the birds in the winter.

A cheerful woman, she never complained once about the various adversities that had faced her through the years of rearing eight children and finally caring for an ill husband.

I have a photo of her on her wedding day. I think that I look a bit like her, the Czechoslovakian daughter of immigrants to the American Midwest, staring somberly at the photographer's camera.

She gardened in her final summer and she baked bread in her final days. She died simply, as she had lived.

So, I want to tell my nephew. Save your memories; guard them well. Then they will last you a lifetime. Then you will always have your grandparents. And because you are lucky -- as I was -- they will be very nice memories.

Lucas deserves civil rights job

MICHIGAN'S BILL LUCAS is getting a bum rap in some sections of the national political scene.

Mr. Lucas is the former Wayne County sheriff and administrator who deserted the Democratic Party to become a Republican to run for governor of Michigan three years ago. He lost big to sitting Gov. James Blanchard.

The whole Lucas scenario didn't set too well with Democrats, both in Michigan and nationally.

Rumors had it that Mr. Lucas would be offered a cushy job in the Reagan Administration. He wasn't. Instead, he spent some time at the Kennedy Institute of Politics at Harvard University, then threw his shoulder into national Republican efforts and helped George Bush in the 1988 presidential campaign. One of his roles was to try to attract blacks and other minorities to the Republican cause.

Now Mr. Lucas has been offered the job as assistant attorney general for civil rights. He would be only the second black to hold the post; still his selection by the Bush team has not met with universal approval.

AS A MATTER OF FACT, the Lucas selection has created some interesting alignments.

The Detroit NAACP and the national NAACP are both publicly opposed to Mr. Lucas. So is the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, and several Michigan Labor Leaders.

But the Detroit Urban League backs him, as does U.S. Rep. John Conyers of Detroit. Support also has been voiced by such other prominent black leaders as the Rev. Jesse Jackson and the Rev. Joseph Lowery of the Southern Christian Leadership Council.

Perhaps most important, both President Bush and Atty. Gen. Dick Thornburgh are staying with their nominee.

THE BIGGEST GRIPE against Mr. Lucas seems to be that his experience as an attorney is limited, especially for someone who will become the nation's chief enforcer of civil rights laws.

That's a point. Mr. Lucas is a law school graduate, and spent a few months in the attorney general's office in Washington in a low level non-trial job. Then he went into the FBI for a career, until he decided to run for sheriff of Wayne County as a Democrat, then was elected again as a Democrat as Wayne County's first County Administrator. Mr. Lucas's Republican conversion and run for governor followed.

Not too much legal experience there. But should that disqualify Mr. Lucas from becoming assistant attorney general? His detractors publicly say yes.

Similar concerns didn't keep Bobby Kennedy from becoming attorney general; of course, the situations are different, and Bill Lucas is no Bobby Kennedy.

Lucas backers also point out that four of the 10 previous holders of the civil rights post had tried five or fewer federal cases before being appointed.

IT'S A BUM RAP to claim Bill Lucas is not qualified for this job because of experience. Anyone who has worked his way out of the New York ghetto and into the national prominence -- such as Bill Lucas has done -- certainly appears fit to look out for the civil rights interests of this nation.

The real reasons for the opposition to Bill Lucas -- although they rarely are cited out in the open -- appear to be that (1) Bill Lucas has not been a radical in his pursuit of civil rights and justice, but rather has pursued a quieter, calmer, more rational approach; and (2) he decided to quit being a Democrat and become a Republican.

Neither is cause enough to turn down this appointment. There may be other arguable reasons to question Mr. Lucas' appointment, but not on experience, nor on those two silent reasons.

ANOTHER LUCAS FOE is People for the American Way, a liberal cross-section group which marshaled the opposition to appointment of Robert Bork to the Supreme Court.

The group spent $600,000 for ads to help defeat Mr. Bork, but doesn't expect the Lucas campaign to be as intense nor as bitter. President Arthur Kropp said his organization hasn't quite decided what form its opposition will take.

Here's a suggestion. Maybe they ought to stage a sit-in in the lobby of the Justice Department headquarters, or even the Capitol rotunda, until Lucas loses.

The building sit-in seems to be in vogue these days -- at least it is here in Michigan.

How to Shop for a Car Loan

(Key Points to Consider)

Are cheap loan rates a better bargain than rebates?

No, don't be fooled by the bold headlines announcing financing at 1/2 the going rate. Your selection is probably limited and you may not be able to afford the monthly payments because the term of the loan is too short.

Special rates offered by car dealers may raise the price of the car. For instance, car makers often increase the price of a car to recoup the cost of deep-discounted loans. Also, you can't bargain price if you take the lower rates.

It is the price of the car that makes the biggest difference in your monthly payments and in the total amount of money you pay. The rebate can be used as a downpayment lowering your monthly payments.

Should you purchase credit life insurance?

Dealers can make up lost profits from the cut-rate loan offers by tying the insurance to the sale of the car—the low loan rate may only apply if you also purchase the credit insurance. This insurance can add hundreds of dollars to the price of your car!

Dealers routinely add credit life insurance to every contract. Be sure to question this practice before signing a loan agreement with your dealer.

You shop for a car—why not shop for a car loan?

Find out how much you are eligible to borrow. Your Credit Union can help you in this respect. Knowing your borrowing limit and the size of monthly payments you can afford will give you greater bargaining power. You'll be in a better position to bargain with the car dealer and get the best price on the car you want.

How can your Credit Union help?

Your Credit Union can help in the following ways:

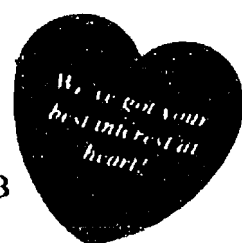

- Provides better bargaining power because you'll start with a cash offer
- Offers more flexibility on the terms of payment than with dealer financing
- Helps you save on sales tax by taking a price break or rebate instead of the dealer's discount financing
- Has a better deal on loan insurance
- Easy repayment available through payroll deduction

You can trust your Credit Union—because you are part owner! If we can't offer you a better deal, we'll tell you so. At Wurtsmith Community Federal Credit Union—we've got your best interests at heart!

... about your Social Security

People who are developmentally disabled may qualify for monthly benefits under either the Social Security or the supplemental security income (SSI) program, sometimes both. The medical requirements so far as disability is concerned are the same for both programs. However, the eligibility rules differ in some other respects.

A mentally retarded person can get Social Security payments when a parent starts getting Social Security retirement or disability benefits, or when an insured parent dies. It doesn't matter how old the child is, but he or she must have become disabled before age 22. A retarded person who has worked long enough under Social Security can also get benefits on his or her own work record.

SSI payments are paid to disabled people of any age, as well as to the blind, and people 65 and over. However, SSI payments are based on financial need, and are made to people who have limited income and resources.

In deciding if a child under 18 and living at home can get SSI checks, part of the parents' income and resources are considered to be that of the child.

People living in institutions are generally not eligible for SSI payments. However, if an SSI recipient enters a medical institution for an expected stay of less than 90 days, it is possible that their SSI payment may be continued for up to three months. People receiving Social Security or SSI disability checks should report any change in their living arrangement to the Social Security Administration right away. If the person's checks are being paid through a representative payee, then the representative payee should notify Social Security of any changes in the disabled person's living arrangement. Changes in income and resources must also be reported.

For more information about benefits for developmentally disabled people, call Social Security toll free at 800-2345-SSA.

Bereavement Group Meets Here June 5

Hospice of Crawford County and the Seventh-day Adventist Church of Grayling will co-sponsor a monthly bereavement support group. The sessions will begin Monday, June 5 at 7 p.m. in the Riverside Room at Mercy Hospital/Grayling.

The purpose of support groups is to offer support, insight, companionship and sharing to persons who have experienced a recent loss of a spouse, friend or family member. Many people who are going through or who have been through the experience of death develop tremendous gifts which enable them to help others.

Please call 348-5461, ext. 345 to make reservations for the first session.

I Bet You Didn't Know

Brought To You By Bill Hart Sales Representative

There's one baseball record that few fans appreciate — but the more you think about it the more amazing it becomes...That's the record for most games won by a pitcher in big league history, set by Cy Young, who won 511 games in his career in the early 1900s...Now to appreciate how hard it is to win 511 games, consider this: It's difficult for any pitcher to win 20 games in any one year; few pitchers ever win 20 games in 3 or 4 or 5 different seasons, but to win 511 games, as Cy Young did, you'd have to AVERAGE OVER 20 WINS A YEAR, EVERY YEAR FOR 25 YEARS!...That's why that's an amazing record and why no one else has ever come close.

Even though the second baseman and shortstop in baseball both play about the same distance from second base, why is one called a second baseman and the other called a shortstop? ...Many years ago, the first second, and third basemen played right at their bases. In these days, the shortstop played as a rover in the shallow or SHORt part of the outfield...Thus he was called a "shortstop". Later, when the basemen moved away from their bases to cover more ground, the shortstop was brought to the infield to play the other side of second base from the second baseman, but kept the name "shortstop".

I bet you didn't know... that Bill Hart and his wife Vickie have a new baby boy! Andrew James Hart. Congratulations to the Hart family from all of us at Scheer Motors. Welcome to the world, Andy!

Ford Escort brakes better than Chevy Cavalier.

In recent independent tests the Ford Tempo GL went from 50 to 70 mph in just 8.43 seconds. It took the Chevrolet Corsica LT a full 9.39 seconds to reach the same speed. Independent tests also proved the superior braking power of the Escort LX over the Chevrolet Cavalier. From a speed of 60 mph, it took the Escort only 138.3 feet to come to a complete stop. The Cavalier needed 150.5 feet.

Dear Fellow Community Members:

In March, Georgia-Pacific announced a proposal to expand its resin plant in Beaver Creek Township to include a formaldehyde manufacturing facility. Since that time, I have spoken to more than 350 people at 15 meetings. Most people have expressed support of Georgia-Pacific as a responsible company and a good corporate citizen of this community. I believe the company has shown great care for the environment and our quality of life here, demonstrated by our outstanding safety record.

We think it's important to discuss openly and honestly the facts about the proposed expansion. I have received many questions, and I wanted to take this opportunity to answer those asked most frequently so the entire community can benefit from the facts.

If I have not answered your questions, please contact me at the plant.

Sincerely,
Joe Newman, Manager
Beaver Creek Resin Plant

What is formaldehyde?

Formaldehyde is a simple chemical made of carbon, hydrogen and oxygen. It is manufactured by adding oxygen to methanol, commonly known as wood alcohol. Formaldehyde is naturally produced by the human body, and occurs naturally in plants and food. It is manufactured today for use in many products, including cosmetics, shampoo, antiperspirants, nail polish, vaccines, tire rubber and fertilizer. It also is used to bind dyes and pigments to fabrics, to put the "wrinkle free" into permanent press clothing, to put the "wet" strength in paper towels and to make adhesives for wood products. Nowhere is this chemical more important than in the wood products industry or, ultimately, more important to the average American homeowner. Without the availability of resins to glue layers of wood, the price of a home would skyrocket.

Why do you need to manufacture formaldehyde on site?

Currently, formaldehyde, which is 50 percent water, is shipped by rail to the Beaver Creek plant from suppliers as far away as Texas. In the three years we have operated here, formaldehyde costs have risen 55 percent.

How will the expansion benefit our community?

The $10-million expansion will provide approximately six permanent jobs that pay good wages -- $13-15 an hour including benefits -- as well as construction jobs; about $500,000 annually in wages, taxes and purchases of goods and services; reinforcement for Weyerhaeuser's operation and our resin plant; and growth of supporting businesses, like the trucking companies that have benefited from the resin plant.

Is formaldehyde safe?

Yes. We have been using formaldehyde safely at the Beaver Creek resin facility since the plant began operation, and Georgia-Pacific has one of the best safety records in the industry today. The company has been manufacturing formaldehyde for more than 20 years at various locations, which amounts to almost 200 plant years of experience in safely handling this chemical.

What about scientific studies?

Formaldehyde has been the subject of more studies than perhaps any other chemical in use today. It has been found to cause cancer in some laboratory rats, but at exposure levels that no human would tolerate for even a second because of formaldehyde's pungent odor. More than 30 studies conducted with humans exposed to formaldehyde have been reviewed by a renowned panel of scientists. They concluded there is no convincing evidence that it causes cancer in humans.

Is formaldehyde regulated?

Yes. The Occupational Health and Safety Administration (OSHA) has set safe workplace levels of exposure at 1 part per million over a period of 8 hours a day, 40 hours a week, for 40 years. Formaldehyde levels in the manufacturing area of the proposed facility will be about 1/10th of the OSHA safe levels, and outside the facility, formaldehyde concentrations would be at least 7,000 times less than the safe levels established by OSHA.

Why do we need industrial growth?

The forest products industry has invested $1.5 billion in the state's economy during the past decade. The industry directly employs 63,000 people in our state, and another 154,000 jobs have resulted because of these forest product businesses. For every job that is created by our proposed facility, two to three more jobs outside the facility are created. When Georgia-Pacific first joined the community, the average unemployment rate for Crawford County was more than 15 percent. Today, with the growth of manufacturing industries, as well as the tourism industry, our unemployment rate in the county has declined to about 9.3 percent. Our resin plant is a clean, non-polluting facility that blends well with the tourism industry in the county to provide a healthy economic structure.

What safety protection systems are included in the design of the proposed facility?

Georgia-Pacific is investing in the most technologically innovative safety and environmental systems and equipment on the market today. The 100-foot-square, totally enclosed structure will include a fume and vapor recovery system that will ensure there are virtually no air emissions, and a complete "bathtub" style spill protection system will prevent damage to the environment.

If you start manufacturing formaldehyde, will you next want to manufacture methanol?

No. The company does not intend to manufacture methanol at our Beaver Creek facility. Methanol is a raw material that Georgia-Pacific does not manufacture at any of our locations. Georgia-Pacific divested itself of its commodity chemicals business in 1984. At that time, it was determined that the company would focus on its core forest products businesses: building products, pulp and paper and chemicals used in the manufacture of those products.

Will the river and air be polluted?

No. Georgia-Pacific will continue to recycle wastewater into the plant manufacturing process. Virtually all vapors will be burned in a catalytic incinerator, and any heat generated during the manufacturing process will be used to produce steam to provide energy for the facility. As a note, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency concluded that the largest sources of formaldehyde to the environment are automobile exhaust and wood-burning stoves.

Won't there be an increase in railroad and truck traffic?

No. There will be a significant overall reduction in shipments to and from the area because we will have eliminated the need to ship in formaldehyde.

Will the company do an environmental impact study?

Yes. Georgia-Pacific retained Swanson Environmental, Inc., in February to conduct an impartial assessment, which will study any potential impact of the manufacturing facility on air, water, land and socio-economic resources of the surrounding area. This study, while not required under the environmental permitting statute, is expected to be available in the next several weeks.

Why is safety and environmental protection important to Georgia-Pacific?

As employees, we live and work in this area. We also enjoy and appreciate the beautiful outdoor environment and want to ensure that it remains clean and safe for our children and grandchildren. Georgia-Pacific is a good corporate citizen in the hundreds of communities where we operate. We are committed to the safe design and operation of our resin plant to protect the environment for our employees and the surrounding communities. The future of our company is directly linked to a sound environment and the good will and trust of community members.

Please let our public officials know your views on the proposed expansion.

Suttles Trucking branch office in Grayling continues to expand since it opened in October of 1988.

Since starting with 5 trucks and 8 tank trailers, Suttles has grown to 8 trucks and 12 tank trailers. Suttles Grayling terminal manager William Bush said they have recently added a new tri-axle tank trailer.

"We've had steady growth each month,"

Suttles Trucking Expands

said Bush. "Much of our growth is due to Georgia Pacific's Resin Plant on Four Mile Rd. The technological know-how of this Georgia-Pacific plant has allowed it to grow and become one of the finest chemical plants in the county," he said. "I've visited many chemical plants in the south and east and have never found a plant that is so safety conscious, quality control oriented, and civic-minded as our own Beaver Creek Georgia Pacific plant," said Bush.

Suttles shop foreman

Bruce Thomas also announced the hiring of Terry Nephew for safety inspections on truck and trailers. Gordon Cox, driver, Gregg Cain, driver, and Jon Cragg, driver trainer and safety director, have also been added.

Local Attorney Helps Settle Liability Suit

Grayling attorney Terrence H. Bloomquist and the Grand Rapids law firm of Gruel, Nims, and Pylman have reached a settlement with Marlin Firearms Company concerning an accidental fatal shooting of a Houghton Lake man.

Bloomquist and the Grand Rapids firm represented the estate of William Miller, killed in a hunting accident on November 23, 1983. The firearm involved was a Marlin Glenfield Model 30, 30-30 Caliber lever action rifle with a standard "half cock safety" which required the user, after levering a shell into the rifle chamber, to firmly hold the hammer of the weapon with his thumb while gently pulling the trigger with his forefinger allowing a release of the hammer to a lock position one-half way between full hammer extension and the firing pin. In this case, the user's thumb slipped while attempting to put the weapon on "safety" and the gun discharged accidentally, killing Miller.

The product liability lawsuit alleged that the Marlin lever action rifle and the hammer/thumb extension was defectively designed, because engaging the "safety" required actually pulling the trigger and did not take into consideration commonly accepted principles of human factors and safety engineering which were available to the manufacturer.

The Defendant contended that the "half cock safety" and hammer/thumb extension had been prominently used features in lever action rifles for many years and that the accidental shooting was the result of user error.

The terms of the settlement remain undisclosed by agreement of the parties.

After the fawn is "saved", problems begin to develop. What to feed it? Where to keep it? How long to keep it? A wild animal raised in close captivity does not have an opportunity to fine tune survival skills needed in the wild and has a reduced chance of survival when released.

Some animals become dangerous as they become older. A young girl from the thumb area was nearly killed several years ago by an antlered buck which had been raised by a neighboring farmer. The 1½ year old buck attacked the girl for no apparent reason, severely lacerating her face with his antlers as she approached to pet him.

A raccoon, another frequently "saved" baby animal is a very endearing wild baby. But they have a real tendency to viciousness as they grow older.

The best thing to do when you see a young wild animal is to leave it alone. Don't touch, don't approach too closely. Observe it quietly if you wish, but leave it where you find it. Nature takes care of its own.

Verse or Worse

By Joseph D. Murphy

Grant

*Grant Thompson was the kind of man
Of which legends are made.
To the folks who knew him
His memory just won't fade.*

*He was a big, strong, husky man.
Hard work had been his lot.
Whenever he had a job to do,
He always gave it his best shot.*

*He managed the airport for years—
The military part.
He kept everything neat and clean.
He took his job to heart.*

*Everything was kept just so.
The roads were his special pride.
He would grade and rake them
Till they were neat from side to side.*

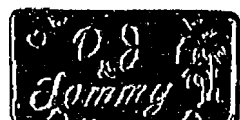

*If you had to go to the airport,
You had better drive carefully there.
If you tore up one of the corners,
He was angry as a bear.*

*He would hand you a garden rake
And tell you to rake it out.
You had better do a real good job,
Of that he left no doubt.*

*He was a hard-working, honest man.
A good friend who'd share your load.
But you had better be careful
You didn't tear up his road.*

*Grant has gone to his reward, now.
So, when your trip to heaven, you make,
You had better be careful on the corners
Or Grant will hand you a rake.*

Auto Parts Store Grew From Gasoline Business

By Irene Pettyjohn
Moore's Automotive, formerly Tufts' Distributing and before that Grayling Gas and Oil, has been in continuous operation since it was started in 1935 by Jessie Schoonover.

William (Bill) Tufts purchased the gasoline business, which he re-named Tufts' Distributing, from Schoonover soon after Tufts returned from the Philippines at the end of World War II. (Schoonover was Tufts' father-in-law.) Tufts financed his new business with money he and his wife, Pauline, had saved during the war.

"When Jessie first began the gasoline business, he sold Mc-Clanahan's Gold Seal Gasoline," said Tufts. "Don't blame people if they haven't heard of the company," he said, "because it didn't last too long."

Bill said that when Mc-Clanahan went belly up, Schoonover switched to Texaco, and Tufts' Distributing continued to sell Texaco products until the business was sold in 1977. (Mc-Clanahan, a wildcatter, was the original owner of River Bend Estates, formerly the Rayburn Estate, located on M-72 East.)

Tufts, from Wisconsin, came to Michigan in 1939 to work in a Civilian Conservation Camp (CCC) in Rogers City. He was transferred to CCC Camp 672 at North Higgins Lake for a short time (time enough to meet his future bride), and then was transferred back to Rogers City. He returned to Grayling and married Miss Schoonover in 1940, "about the time Uncle Sam decided he wanted me to serve him," Tufts said.

In 1945, Tufts' Distributing consisted of three tanks, a small shed for the pumping equipment, one 836 gallon truck, and one employee, Perry Akers.

TOO COLD
"We carried two grades of Texaco gasoline, Firechief and Skychief, white gas, and #1 fuel oil," said Tufts. "We couldn't carry #2 fuel oil," he explained, "because during the winter, it became so thick we couldn't pour it." Tufts' also carried three grades of motor oil.

Tufts' furnished gasoline and fuel oil to service stations and to private individuals. It also distributed white gas to residents without electricity, who operated their own light plants. Delivery routes went north to Gaylord, south to Houghton Lake, east to Lewiston and west to Kalkaska.

NO ELECTRICITY
Tufts said that in 1945, with the exception of the City of Grayling, the Lake Margrethe area and parts of Beaver Creek, most of Crawford County was without electricity.

"The pump on the side of the truck was run by a Briggs & Stratton engine," said Tufts, "that did not always work." Tufts said that when the engine refused to run the driver had to bucket the gasoline by hand. Because there was only one pump on the truck (used for fuel oil), the white gasoline was all bucketed by hand.

"That kept me thin," said Tufts.

"In the early years," Tufts recalled, "there were many times when our truck was on the roads ahead of the plows. We used to tell the boys down at the road commission that we were breaking trail for them," he said.

Because of the scarcity of telephones in the county during the mid 1950's, Tufts said that his trucks were equipped with radios.

"If a truck broke down 25 miles in the country," he said, "you lost a truck and a driver all day, while the driver tried to find help."

Early employees included Art Williams, Wilber (Wimp) Winslow, and Oliver Hayes. Later, George Hanson and Stanley Owens were hired.

KOREAN WAR
There were two major turning points during Tufts' 32 year history. The first came in 1951 when Tufts was recalled to active duty with the Army during the Korean conflict.

"I was faced with the decision of either selling out or incorporating," Tufts said. He incorporated, took on an associate, Bob Hanson, and the business became Tufts' Distributing Company. Hanson ran the business while Tufts fought the Korean War from LaRoche, France.

Hanson was a native of Grayling. Before his association with Tufts', Hanson had worked for McEvers' Motor Sales. During World War II Hanson served in the Army with the 752 Tank Battalion in North Africa and Italy. He married Frances (Fran) Rutkowski from Grayling in 1951. The Hansons had two children, a son, Rob, who lives in Grayling and a daughter Nancy Suttles who is married and lives in West Fargo, N.D. The Hansons have a grandson, Wesley.

AUTO PARTS
The second turning point to Tufts' came around 1957 when it became a NAPA dealership. Tufts' had been selling some auto parts since about 1953.

"Up until then we had dealt with a series of jobbers throughout the area," said Tufts, "but NAPA put us in a class by ourselves. Pretty soon," he said, "the tail began wagging the dog, and auto parts sales became the major part of the business."

Tufts' Distributing Co. reached its peak about 1965. By this time it had three trucks and 10 employees.

The last couple years before Tufts and Hanson sold the business, they battled oil embargo problems.

"We didn't know from one day's end to the next," Tufts stated, "whether we were in the gasoline business or not. It got to a point that it was a big headache," he said, "and NAPA was the only pleasant part."

"When I got out," he said, "I was ready to get out. The fun had gone out of the business."

Tufts' Distributing Company was sold in 1977 to a group of four investors from Grand Rapids. One of the investors, Al Tuuk, was the general manager of Grand Rapids Automotive, who had been the NAPA supplier for Tufts'.

Bob Hanson continued to work for the new owners until his semi-retirement in 1985.

Retirement for the Tufts "is not all bad," Tufts and his wife, Gladys, enjoy a busy life traveling and serving others through their involvement in the RSVP Program.

"In the doing of our volunteer work," Tufts said, "we get an awful lot more out of it, than the people we are trying to help."

Fred Moore purchased the auto parts portion of Tufts' Distributing from Tuuk on May 1, 1977, and re-named the business, Moore's Automotive. The gas and oil distributing business was sold to Blarney Castle, and the real estate was sold to several individuals.

During the 12 years Moore has owned the business he has made both administrative and structural changes.

Moore brought the business into the computer age when he transferred the old manual card inventory system to a nationwide NAPA computer system.

"Today, when we make a sale, the computer records the sale and automatically re-orders the item," said Moore.

"Special orders are easier to place, too," he said. "I can enter the part number into the computer, and it scans the Grand Rapids' distribution center stock instantly. If they don't have the part," explained Moore, "the computer will automatically begin scanning inventories in Detroit, Fort Wayne, Indianapolis, Columbus, Carleton, Cleveland, and Cincinnati."

"The computer has the capability of checking inventories worth $50,000,000," Moore said.

Structural changes included tearing down the original white office, and adding a 40 x 40 foot storage facility. Moore said that the addition was constructed over a portion of the existing building. He said that steel beams were placed down the length of the addition to make it appear to be one building. Renovation also included remodeling the interior display area. The front landscaping added the finishing touch to Moore's rejuvenation project.

Moore's Automotive offers overnight delivery from Detroit and Grand Rapids, and two day delivery from out-of-state centers.

Besides supplying NAPA auto parts, Moore's mixes automotive paints, turns brake drums and rotors, and assembles hydraulic hoses.

"We try to give the best service on hard-to-get parts," said Moore.

Moore's Automotive offers quality NAPA parts that carry the NAPA nation-wide warranty.

"If a person buys NAPA parts here," explained Moore, "and they go somewhere else and it goes bad, there is an 800 number that will assist the customer locate the nearest NAPA store, and NAPA will replace the part free of charge." Moore said that this warranty is good anywhere in America.

Moore began working with NAPA parts in 1960 when he managed an auto parts store in Edmore for his father.

"I had my eye on this store many years before I bought it," said Moore. "I love the area, especially the friendly attitude of the people who live here," he said.

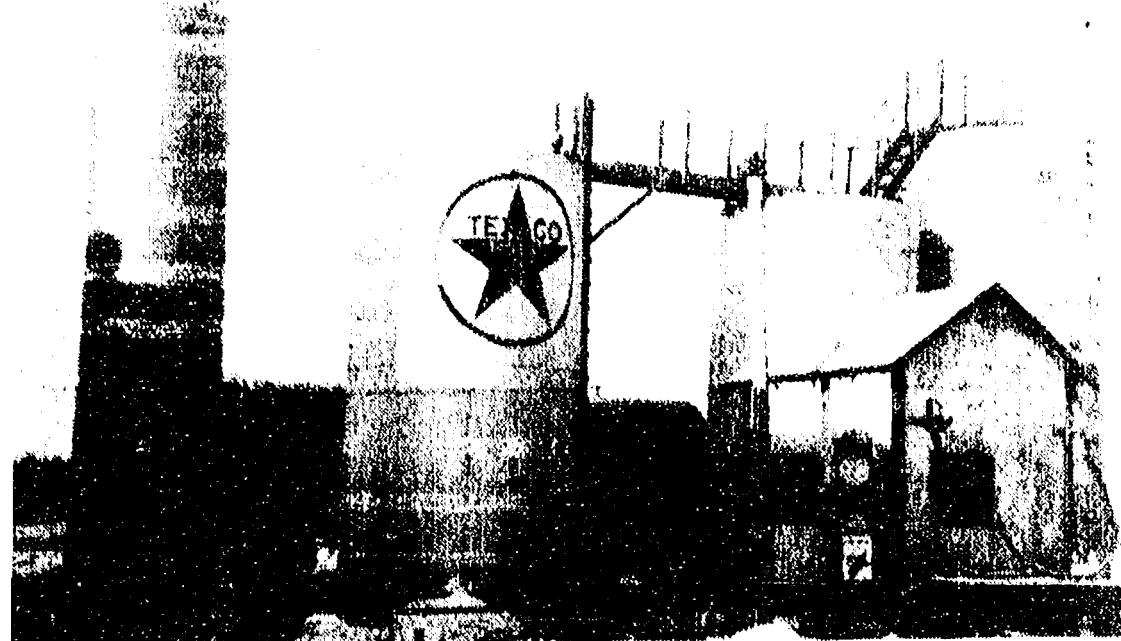

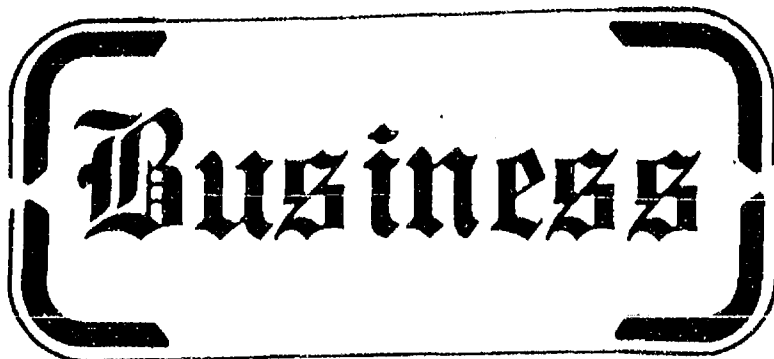

Moore, his wife Nancy, moved to Grayling from Alma in 1977. They have five children. Two are married, two are in college, and Andy is a sophomore at Grayling High School.

When not working, Moore has served on the board of directors at the Grayling Country Club, the Grayling State Bank, and the Rotary. He is also a member of the Grayling Regional Chamber of Commerce.

Besides Fred and Nancy, who works as bookkeeper, Moore's Automotive employs one fulltime employee, Norm Barth, and two parttime employees, son, Tim, who works weekends and during college breaks, and Bob Hanson, who still comes in two mornings a week to "help out."

Moore's Automotive is located at 201 James Street, next door to the A&P Store and is open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., and on Saturday from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.
